File 1: Confidential U.S. Government Memo

CLASSIFIED - EYES ONLY

U.S. Department of Strategic Economic Affairs

Date: October 12, 2021

Subject: Strategic Leverage Operations - Canadian Territories and Greenland Acquisition

Summary:

This memo outlines a long-term strategy to facilitate U.S. acquisition of strategic Arctic and resource-rich territories in Canada and Greenland. Direct military engagement is not viable. Instead, economic destabilization, resource acquisition, and political realignment strategies must be implemented.

Phase 1: Economic Pressure Campaign (Ongoing)

- Tariffs on Canadian oil, lumber, and agriculture.
- Expansion of U.S. energy production to suppress Canadian exports.
- Strategic shorting of the Canadian dollar (CAD).

Phase 2: Political Destabilization (2021-2022)

- Funding separatist movements in Alberta and British Columbia.
- Intelligence operations to weaken public trust in Ottawa.
- Cyber operations targeting government and banking institutions.

Phase 3: Negotiated Transfer of Territory (Projected 2023-2024)

- Offer of debt relief in exchange for land concessions.
- Establishment of U.S. military bases in Yukon and Nunavut.

Key Operatives:

- Sen. Ethan Caldwell (R-TX) - Congressional Liaison
- Stratwell Energy - Resource acquisition & lobbying
- Cascadia Capital Partners - Currency destabilization strategies
- Sergei Komarov & Arkady Volkov - Russian intermediaries

File 2: Internal Email Exchange

To: Harlan Wexler, Cascadia Capital Partners

Subject: RE: Resource Leverage in Alberta

Date: November 4, 2021

Harlan,

The market fluctuations are working as planned. We've driven down Alberta's investment rating, and local businesses are already feeling the squeeze. Our proxies in Parliament are pushing economic distress messaging. We expect public trust in Ottawa's fiscal policies to erode further by Q2 2022.

Regarding pipeline shutdowns, our contacts in D.C. have confirmed further regulatory barriers next quarter, making TransMountain's expansion financially untenable. Keep pressure on institutional investors to withdraw support. Once Alberta buckles, the rest will follow.

File 3: Leaked Financial Report

CONFIDENTIAL - CASCADIA CAPITAL PARTNERS INTERNAL REPORT

Title: Western Canada Economic Destabilization Fund - Q3 2021 Analysis

Key Allocations:

- $350M USD - Directed to Alberta political action groups supporting independence narratives.
- $125M USD - Investment withdrawal from Canadian resource firms to depress stock value.
- $70M USD - Media placements and social influence campaigns targeting anti-Ottawa sentiment.
- $40M USD - Legal and political lobbying efforts in Washington and Ottawa.

Projected Impact:

- Expected CAD devaluation of 12-15% over the next 12 months.
- Significant budgetary deficits forcing Ottawa to consider alternative economic solutions.
- Increased public support for localized governance in Western Canada.
